121.5 ELT Replacement Options: 406 ELTs, PLBs, and More

Your 121.5 ELT is virtually useless. Aviation survival authority Doug Ritter will clarify the often confusing options including 406-MHz ELT upgrades, 406 PLBs, SPOT, and other alternative distress alerting devices.

Doug Ritter is an award winning journalist and internationally recognized authority on survival equipment. He is the founder, Publisher and Editor of the acclaimed Equipped to Survive Web site www.equipped.org and Board Chairman & Executive Director of the Equipped To Survive Foundation. He sits on U.S. and international committees that determine specifications for aviation, marine and terrestrial survival equipment. Ritter's flying experience ranges from ultralights to the F16. If the question is General Aviation survival, Doug Ritter likely has the definitive answer.

Ditching & Water Survival

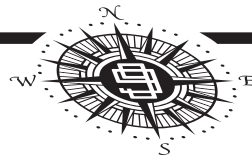

If you fly over any types of water (ocean, lake, or river) during takeoff, landing, or enroute, don't miss this program. An unintended splashdown doesn't mean you will be sleeping with the fish. One of the world's leading general aviation ditching authorities, Doug torpedoes numerous myths and old wives' tales about ditching and covers:

- ✦ The actual ditching process and egress procedures
- ✦ Water survival strategies
- ✦ Overwater search and rescue procedures;
- ✦ The open water environment;
- ✦ Hypothermia and other physiological concerns;
- ✦ Psychological aspects of water survival.

This class will give you the information you need to survive a ditching.
