This seminar offers a hands-on look at unleashing the capabilities of modern portable GPS devices. Bring a portable GPS or come to learn the particulars of various portable models prior to making a GPS purchase. The seminar will focus on the Garmin line of portables, including the new Aeras.

In addition to basic operations, you'll see how to use the incredible features of the modern portable GPS to make flying easier, safer, and more enjoyable. There's something for both VFR and IFR pilots who will benefit from the enhanced situational awareness provided by the portables and the astounding information available at the push of a button (or two).

The seminar will also cover the portable GPS' pitfalls and limitations and stress the imperative of keeping your focus outside the cockpit. Charge your batteries, bring your questions and be prepared to utilize the maximum potential of a portable GPS.

Bring fully charged portable GPS (if you have one).
